

Dydd Mawrth 21 Mai

Rapidly Chomp and Cookie raced after Munchie. "He's running like a rabbit in shooting hour" panted Cookie. "I know I don't think I can keep up" replied Chomp. But then they saw Munchie run into the local store called Mr. Sunny's Super Store. "The mad Jack-russle has shot a pin to my paw he can't go in there it says no dogs and it looks scary" trembled Cookie. "It looks like a people eating monster". How will they ever find Munchie in this market of hell.

"On no" screamed Cookie. "We're trapped", "This sign says no dogs we're dogs" worried Chomp. "Man some rules in the human world Oh well we can't find him I'm going home to my nice warm bed" yelled Chomp walking away. "No you don't Mr Chomp Mr Sheperd we are going to find Munchie wether you like it or not he is still our cousin" demanded Cookie. How will they ever find a way in.

They looked around for essentials to help them get in. They saw a soggy roll of toilet paper, a bag of old crisps and a old trolley that could come in handy. They pounced in and chose who would be pushing this metal car that carries food and of course it was Chomp. He heaved and hoed and got it moving. Then a lady came they both jumped into a plastic bag. The lady pushed the trolley into the market. She looked away the two dogs took the chance and hopped out. They human teleporters and magic Stairs that moved the people without them needing to move. They started shouting munchie's name and trying to bribe him out. Will he be lost forever?

By now Munchie was looking for food, his belly grumbled like a angry dog growling. He then caught eye of his favourite food, doggy choos. He leaped towards the ~~stake~~ stack of choos like a kid on chistmas day running to his presents. He ripped into the boxes and started tucking in. By the time he'd got through the 50th box the dog catchers were here they probaly noticed him while he was eating. He was full, he was stuck, oh no...

Chomp and Cookie were still looking for munchie but still no sign of the silly Jackcrusble. Finally they saw munchie squeezed into a cage next to the pet food section they could see he was looking kind of... plump he looked a bit like a hairy pear the top of the pear is his head. So they agreed to help him. Chomp distracted the dog catchers while Cookie desprately pulled to get him out. But he was stuck so cookie grabed a pair of scissors from the craft area and poked holes underneath the cage so he could stick his legs through and run. They ran around the Supermarket about One million times each time munchie was trying to eat an other doggy

Choc but failed. Will they ever get out?

As a result of the running around Munchie started to lose weight and was sadly getting smaller. Finally he'd lost so much fat he could get out of the cage. Chomp couldn't run any more but then he saw a hole in the wall that led outside, as the entrance to the market was blocked by trolleys. The dogs were getting tired so both of them followed Chomp through the hole. When they had caught their breath angrily Chomp and Cookie told Munchie not to pull a terrorfying stunt like that again. Munchie then did something the other two thought he'd never do he apologised emotionally. But Chomp thought that Munchie wasn't giving full honesty.